

James McCanney

Need to read up on this guy and his water filters -

- <https://www.jmccwaterfilters.com/>
 - <https://www.patreon.com/jmccsci>
 - Wow, he actually does have a patent on a wind powered generator - <https://patents.google.com/patent/US11220992B2/en?q=jmcc+wing+generator+mccanney&oq=jmcc+wing+generator+mccanney>
 - Pretty extravagant claims, though, in his bio
 - <https://www.jmccanneyscience.com/>
 - <https://www.coasttocoastam.com/guest/mccanney-james-6143/>
 - Professor James M. McCanney vs Joseph A. Burns Cornell Astronomy Saturn's Sweeper Moons Predicted
 - Video description sounds bitter or narcissistic to me, but...maybe he's telling the truth - I haven't watched the video
 - <https://forum.cosmoquest.org/forum/the-proving-grounds/against-the-mainstream/3468-who-is-james-mccanney?3487-Who-is-James-McCanney=>
 - I searched his name and "physics" and then "planet" and found nothing peer reviewed
 - In Google Scholar
 - Actually, there is something I stumbled upon

 - <https://adsabs.harvard.edu/pdf/1981Ap%26SS..74...57M>
 - This guy is not impressed with him - <https://robscholtemuseum.nl/wp-content/uploads/2018/03/Immanuel-Velikovsky-info-file.pdf>
 - He emailed with me and said he only knew McCanney in the 80s, and that McCanney could never admit when he was mistaken about something
 - Sounds narcissistic, if true.
 - He's got some bio info
 - <https://www.jmccanneyscience.com/newvisitorsub-page>
 - <https://www.jmccanneyscience.com/bio/>
 - Some of this doesn't make sense
 - He's all about Library of Congress and NASA data, but he refuses government funding because it corrupts research
 - He was not allowed to publish in astrophysics journals, but then suddenly was again, but then suddenly wasn't again.
 - Kronos (I think a Velikovsky journal) published him in 1981

- Little did I know that my brains had been purged of "the past prime number problem" information and the fresh look was truly what was needed. As I sat down that morning with pen in hand, I began probing into the middle of the prime number table. It hit me like a ton of bricks and I did not stop working until the entire solution method had been worked out ... it was so logical and so simple ... and so elegant. I had solved the initial portion ... the essence of the prime number problem. It took another 6 weeks of daily work to iron out the details and put it into a form that other people would understand. Additionally I had to answer for myself all of the difficult questions I knew that professional mathematicians would ask when they saw the formula that directly calculates the prime numbers. Most of all, I had discovered a new mathematical technique that I knew had to exist and may possibly be used on other more complex mathematical problems.

This book has been designed for the general public and also for mathematicians who want an overview of the solution to the oldest and most illusive mathematical problem in the history of modern man."

- That sounds like a over the top.

- I don't agree with the way this author talks, and doesn't cite several claims, but it's a place to look at others links
 - Or not - two of the links go nowhere
- Um...why does JMCC claim to be the CeraMetix and AquaMetix?
 - <https://www.jmccanneyscience.com/product/gravity-replacement-filter-elements> - see the "HI" Filter Element Spec Sheet link that goes here - <https://www.jmccanneyscience.com/filterelementsheetspecsheet/>
 - It says it's CeraMetix and AquaMetix
 - Claims NSF testing standards, but there's none that I've found, and he's not emailed me back about them
 - I doubt they're connected, he probably shouldn't have written that.
 - <https://www.jmccwaterfilters.com/product/gravity-replacement-filter-elements/>
 - Claims NSF 61, but the link is just to a description of the standard, not proof he has the cert
 - Searching "mccanney" or "jmcc" for all NSF standards they list in their respective databases
 - <https://www.truesdail.com/product-listings/>
 - Not in Truesdail
 - Not in NSF
 - Not in WQA
 - Not in IAPMO
 - <https://www.jmccwaterfilters.com/wp-content/uploads/2021/07/JMCC-WATER-FILTERS-HI-spec-sheet-07122021.pdf>
 - I'm thinking he might be making fraudulent claims

- I emailed him for third-party test results and NSF cert status, and he has not responded to several questions in over two weeks.
 - He did respond to one email, but he ignored my questions about test results.
